SARATOGA INTERNATIONAL THEATRE INSTITUTE

WORLD THEATRICAL PREMIERE!

SYSTEMS / LAYERS

with a live performance by RACHELS

"From the primitive ages, the human body has been linked with nature as a member in which water and air circulate. People today are equipped with an electronic body in which information circulates, and are thus linked to the world through a network of information by means of this other body. This virtual body of electron flow is drastically changing the mode of communication, while the primitive body still craves beautiful light and wind. The biggest challenge for us is how we can integrate these two types of body..."

Director's Notes

In July of 1996 our Company was invited to teach a two week summer theater intensive at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. At the end of the workshop the participants presented final compositions based on the plays of Anton Chekhov. One of the compositions ended with an amazing piece of music that took my breath away. It was a duet for piano and cello. I ran up to the director after the performance and asked, "What was that music? Who was playing? I need to know!"

And he said, "Oh, that's Rachel's."

I immediately went to Tower Records to find Rachel's. I went to the classical section first, but no Rachel's. Then I went to the chamber ensemble section, but no Rachel's. So I finally asked someone and they told me to check the pop/rock section and sure enough, there they were.

Rachel's, as it turns out, is hard to classify. One can think of them as an indie-rock-band/classical-chamber ensemble, or a crazy classical band with an edge, or a "plugged-in" chamber group. But I now think of them as well... Rachel's- the band.

After listening to their music for years, playing it in our classes, and even using their music for one of our shows, SITI and Rachel's finally met in person in Louisville, Kentucky. We hit it off instantly and decided to dive into the deep end and make something together.

But how does a band and a theater company create a show? What is the language we use? How do we communicate? How do musicians and actors collaborate?

We began by improvising, the actors on the stage and the band watching, listening and responding musically from the front. Right away it became apparent that how we make work as a theater company and how they make music together as a band was totally similar. What emerged in the space between was something completely unexpected and remarkably beautiful.

But of course the big question was what the show would be about. We found common ground in the age of information and globalization in which we live. As technology and industry becomes an increasing fact of life, as the world gets 'on-line' and we become more disassociated from our environment and from each other, how do we maintain our humanity? This is the primary question we were seeking to answer in our collaboration.

Our experimentation has taken shape and blossomed into the production you will see tonight. We began our initial work on the piece here at USU during a residency in 2002 and I am extremely happy that we are also premiering it on the stage where it all began.

Company Information

SITI COMPANY

SITI Company, in its second decade of activity, began as an agreement between Tadashi Suzuki and Anne Bogart to establish a new venture in the United States that would emphasize international cultural exchange and collaboration. SITI believes in a commitment to the power of the theater as a source of spiritual strength in the contemporary global environment. Originally envisioned as a summer institute in Saratoga Springs, NY, SITI grew quickly into a year-round theater company based in New York City with an office and studio. Saratoga Springs is now SITI's summer home.

An ensemble-based theater company, SITI exemplifies the disciplines it practices and the artistic values it develops in its work. The company's mission is to create new works for the theater, to perform and tour these productions nationally and internationally, to provide ongoing training for young theater professionals in an approach to acting that forges unique and highly disciplined artists for the theater, and to foster opportunities for cultural exchange with theater professionals and audiences from all over the world.

In addition to Artistic Director Anne Bogart, SITI Company is comprised of ten actors, five designers, a playwright, stage manager, development director and managing director. The company represents a change in thinking about the relationships between artists and institutions. One way SITI is accomplishing its mission is by integrating into other organizations of the existing American and international theater systems. Rachel's

Rachel's six Quarterstick album releases have inspired numerous attempts to describe the band and its style, resulting in phrases like "subversives with a cello," "classical post-rock," "post-classical," "lo-fi Louisville loafers," and finally, "the foremost purveyors of forlorn and lamentation orchestral arrangements in the indie world". Perhaps more accurately, The New York Times described Rachel's as "mature enough to disregard trends and do what they like." Simply put, Rachel's is a collective of friends playing in an instrumental band that share the desire to explore ideas together without manifestos or genre biases. The band is based in Louisville, KY (state motto: united we stand, divided we fall.)

Their sixth album, systems/layers, was released in October of 2003. The record contains music created in collaboration with the SITI Co. over the last two years. Arc Hive, a film project with artist and Rachels member Greg King, will be released in 2005.

The band has toured North America, Europe and Korea appearing in libraries, churches, rock dungeons, ballrooms, bowling alleys and movie theaters. Their diverse audiences have included punk kids and grandparents, classical and jazz devotees, and the occasional infant. In 1998 they opened for PJ Harvey's Is This Desire? tour and recently traveled to the All Tomorrow's Parties music festival in Camber Sands, England.

Rachels has often worked with filmmakers, dance companies, stage productions, print-makers and photographers. In keeping with their love of film, they have contributed tracks to several independent and feature films, including Oliver Stone's recent Any Given Sunday, Miguel Arteta's Star Maps, Oasis Pictures My Dog Vincent, and Artemis Productions Une Liason Pornographique. Their music constituted the score for Channel 4's documentary film, A Day to Remember, and the band's 1999 Knitting Factory performance was featured on the BET "On Jazz" channel. Performances include appearances on National Public Radio's "Weekend Edition Sunday Morning", "New Sounds" at WNYC Radio, and on WFMU's "The Stork Club." In 1997, they recorded a Peel Session for BBC's Radio One. Information and updates: www.rachelsband.com Rachel's would like to thank the kind and amazing folks at Utah State and the lovely humans of the SITI Company. Special "thanks" to Alec Johnson, Tara Frederickson, John Baker, Kristin Furnish and Edward Grimes (our beloved drummer and all-around bro).
