Negli USA è un punto di riferimento fondamentale per il teatro di ricerca: la SITI Company, ovvero Saratoga International Theater Institute – fondata da Anne Bogart, Tadashi Suzuki e artisti a loro affini, co-diretta da Bogart, Leon Ingulsrud e Ellen Lauren – ha segnato la storia recente dell'avanguardia americana.

Anne Bogart è l'anima pulsante di un gruppo che ha radicalmente rinnovato i canoni creativi occidentali, portando alla totale messa in discussione dei ruoli consolidati nella dinamica teatrale.

Artista influente, capace di creare comunità attorno a sé, punto di riferimento intellettuale, applaudita ovunque, Anne Bogart è ancora misconosciuta in Italia.

Nata a Newport, ma vissuta in tutto il mondo al seguito del padre militare in Marina, ha scoperto il teatro sin da bambina, a scuola.

Nel 1974 arriva a New York, e la sua avventura artistica inizia con un annuncio su un giornale: «Attori interessati a un'indagine sull'assassinio attraverso il Macbeth chiamino questo numero...». Tra mille traversie, senza fondi e senza spazi, si crea un piccolo gruppo. Nasce così Inhabitat, la prima performance organizzata in una casa a Brooklyn, con il pubblico “trasportato” da Manhattan a bordo di un camion. Fu un evento cult, amato anche da John Cage. Poi, mentre prosegue gli studi, alla fine degli anni Settanta, Bogart scopre casualmente la scena tedesca e Peter Stein e, quasi contemporaneamente, la prestigiosa rivista tedesca TheaterHeute scopriva il suo “Nuovo teatro americano”.

Ma Bogart sceglierà a modello “comunitario” il percorso di Ariane Mnouchkine e quando, in una trasferta in Giappone, incontrerà Tadashi Suzuki, assieme daranno vita alla SITI Company. «Il mio sogno per una mia compagnia - scriveva - è che volevo essere il Kronos Quartet del mondo teatrale, perché sono interessata al tipo di pubblico che si interessa ai lavori nuovi, alle nuove commissioni, ai nuovi autori, a punti di vista inediti sulle cose».

Forse sono proprio queste le parole chiave del

In the United States it is a fundamental benchmark for experimental theatre: the SITI Company, Saratoga International Theater Institute – founded by Anne Bogart, Tadashi Suzuki and likeminded artists, and co-directed by Bogart, Leon Ingulsrud and Ellen Lauren – has marked the recent history of the American avant-garde.

Anne Bogart is the pulsating heart of a group that has radically revitalized western creative canons, totally challenging the consolidated roles in the dynamics of theatre.

An influential artist, who has created a community around her, an intellectual point of reference who has been acclaimed wherever she has gone, Anne Bogart is little known in Italy. Born in Newport, though as the daughter of a Navy family she lived around the world, she discovered theatre in school as a child.

In 1974 she came to New York, beginning her artistic career with an ad in the paper: “Actors interested in an investigation of assassination and murder using Shakespeare’s Macbeth, call this number.” With no funding and no space, and endless hurdles to overcome, she created a small group. Their first performance was Inhabitat, organized in a house in Brooklyn, “shuttling” the audience in from Manhattan on a truck. It was a cult event, much appreciated by John Cage. Then as she pursued her studies in the late Seventies, Bogart happened to discover the German scene and Peter Stein, while at the same time the prestigious German magazine TheaterHeute discovered her “New American Theatre”.

But Bogart would choose the “community” model pioneered by Ariane Mnouchkine. During a trip to Japan, she met Tadashi Suzuki and together they founded the SITI Company. «My dream of my company – she wrote – is that I want to be the Kronos Quartet of the theatre world, because I’m interested in the kind of audiences who are interested in new work, new commissions, new writers, fresh ways of seeing things».

These words are perhaps the key to the theatre of Anne Bogart, Tadashi Suzuki and the SITI teatro di Anne Bogart, Tadashi Suzuki e della SITI company. Un lavoro che ha attraversato testi classici, sapientemente decostruiti, e testi contemporanei.

«Il fenomeno SITI – ha scritto la giovane studiosa Irene Scaturro nel primo volume edito in Italia dedicato alla Bogart – rappresenta un modello virtuoso di leadership etica e collaborazione democratica [...] le tecniche selezionate sono state infatti integrate con l'intento di sviluppare e affinare negli attori sia le abilità necessarie ad affrontare la scena, sia la capacità di compiere quel lavoro compositivo, quel "montaggio di montaggi", un tempo appannaggio esclusivo della regista».

A Venezia Anne Bogart presenta Bob, monologo del 1998 e considerato uno degli spettacoli di maggior successo della compagnia: ispirato e dedicato alla vita e l'opera di Bob Wilson, per Bogart uno degli "eroi", non solo teatrali, della vita americana, Bob è il racconto di una crisi creativa e dell'incontro straordinario di cultura pop e cultura alta. Realizzato con pochi elementi scenici (e una bottiglia di latte), Bob è stato definito una "iconoclasta ode al teatro".

E all'altro genio della scena americana, John Cage, è dedicato il workshop che Bogart tiene alla Biennale. Attraverso metodi Viewpoints (per il movimento e improvvisazione vocale) e Composition (per l'allestimento scenico), il workshop approfondirà le influenze del compositore/filosofo Cage, che sarà oggetto anche della nuova creazione del gruppo, dal titolo Theater Piece #1, basata proprio sull'impatto del compositore nel mondo.

company. They have worked on the classics, which they have masterfully deconstructed, and on contemporary texts.

«The SITI phenomenon – wrote young scholar Irene Scaturro in the first book published in Italy dedicated to Anne Bogart – represents a virtuous model of ethical leadership and democratic collaboration [...] The techniques they chose merged with the intent to develop and refine the skills that actors need to go on stage, as well as their capacity to put things together, to "assemble assemblages", which was once the responsibility of the director alone».

In Venice Anne Bogart will present Bob, a monologue written in 1998 and considered one of the company's most successful productions: inspired by and dedicated to the life and work of Bob Wilson, whom Bogart considers to be one of the heroes, not just in the theatre, of American life. Bob is the story of a creative crisis and the remarkable encounter between pop and highbrow culture. Staged with a scarcity of props (and a bottle of milk), Bob has been defined as an "iconoclastic ode to theatre".

The workshop that Bogart will lead for the Biennale is dedicated to that other genius of the American stage, John Cage. Using the Viewpoints method (of movement and vocal improvisation) and the Composition method (of stage design), the workshop will explore the influences of composer/philosopher John Cage, who will be the subject of the group's new creation, titled Theater Piece #1, based on the composer's impact around the world.

Will Bond (Bob)

Will Bond è uno dei fondatori della SITI Company. È stato protagonista sulle scene internazionali degli spettacoli della SITI quali Orestes, The Medium, Small Lives/Big Dreams, Culture of Desire, Bob (nominato per il premio Drama Desk solo performance), War of the Worlds, bobrauschenbergamerica, Death and the Ploughman, Radio Macbeth, Who Do You Think You Are, Antigone, e Persians. Ha recitato in Dionysus di Tadashi Suzuki e The Tale of Lear, Persephone di Robert Wilson, oltre a A RITE una collaborazione Bill T Jones/Arnie Zane Dance Company - SITI. Fra le sue opere originali I'll Crane For You, un assolo di danza commissionato da Deborah Hay, The Perfect Human V.1, Option Delete, e una commissione da EMPAC DANCE MOVIES 2013, Lost & Found, tutte con Marianne Kim.
