

Seen and Heard International

SINCE 1999 MUSICWEB INTERNATIONAL'S LIVE REVIEW SITE FOR CONCERTS, OPERAS AND BALLET

- Home
- Concert Reviews
  - UK Concerts
  - International Concerts
- Opera & Ballet
  - International Opera
  - UK Opera
  - Ballet Reviews
- Musicals & Others
  - Broadcasts and Film
  - Musicals
- Articles & Interviews
  - Featured Articles and News
  - Interviews
  - News and Press Releases
  - Season Previews
- Festivals
  - Festivals 2013
    - Bayreuth 2013
    - Berlin Musikfest 2013
    - Buxton Music Festival 2013
    - Buxton Gilbert & Sullivan 2013
    - Cheltenham Music Festival 2013
    - Dresden Music Festival 2013
    - Edinburgh International Festival 2013
    - Glyndebourne 2013
    - Lucerne Festival 2013
    - Mostly Mozart Festival 2013
    - Munich Opera Festival 2013
  - Festivals 2014
    - Bayreuth-2014
    - Buxton Festival-2014
    - Cheltenham Music Festival 2014
    - Dresden Music Festival 2014
    - Edinburgh Festival-2014
    - Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2014
    - Lucerne Festival 2014
    - Salzburg Festival 2014
    - Three Choirs Festival-2014
  - Festival 2015
    - Aspen Festival -2015
    - Bayreuth-2015
    - BBC Promenade Concerts 2015
    - Edinburgh International Festival 2015
    - Lucerne Festival 2015
  - Festivals 2016
    - BBC Promenade Concerts 2016

Lost in the Stars: A Timeless Work that Speaks to All

31/01/2017

 United States Kurt Weill, Maxwell Anderson, Lost in the Stars: Artists and Soloists of Siti Company, Albert McNeil Jubilee Singers, Los Robles Master Chorale, Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra/Jeffrey Kahane (conductor), Royce Hall, Los Angeles, 29.1.2017. (JRo)

Justin Hopkins & Lauren Michelle in Lost in the Stars;
Photo credit: Reed Hutchinson.

Principal Singers:

Linda – Meloney Collins
Stephen Kumalo – Justin Hopkins
Irina – Lauren Michelle
Chorus Leader – Issachah Savage
Alex – Joel Baptiste Muepo

Actors:

Zuri Adele, Will Bond, Larry Powell, Samuel Sticklen, Stephen Duff Webber

Production:

Director – Anne Bogart
Costume Design – Nephelie Andonyadis
Lighting and Scenic Design – Brian H Scott
Choreography – David Roussève

When a politically powerful work of art performed by world-class artists takes the stage before an audience hungering for substance and truth, the results are electric. Without doubt, UCLA's Royce Hall was an important place to be on Sunday evening. Those in attendance were treated to an emotional rollercoaster of profound implications. Kurt Weill and Maxwell Anderson's Lost in the Stars, based on Alan Paton's great anti-apartheid novel, Cry, the Beloved Country, speaks to issues of racism in South Africa but travels across time and space, landing, like a gift, to audiences in LA now. One can only hope it travels further, perhaps as far as Trump Tower.

Produced for the Broadway stage in 1949, the show can be accurately described as a singspiel, combining non-singing actors and operatic singers. It ran for over 300 performances but never traveled the country: the tour was cancelled in protest when it was learned that the black cast would be banned from staying at the same hotels as the white cast. Weill was a man who lived by his principals, and we are the beneficiaries of his vision.

That vision is evident in all his works, as are his prodigious musical gifts. The cast and orchestra did justice to Weill, from the exquisite rendering of his score by LACO under the baton of Jeffrey Kahane, whose dream it was to present this piece; to the principal singers whose devotion to and interpretation of the material was of the highest quality. Add to that the marvelous chorus and the consummate actors whose gravitas and stage presence grounded the piece, and you have a gripping evening of drama and song.

Lost in the Stars incorporates gospel, African American spirituals, blues and Broadway show tunes to tell the tale of a black minister, Stephen Kumalo, who leaves his South African village for Johannesburg in search of his son, Absalom. He discovers his boy in prison, accused of killing a white man – an act foolishly executed out of social and financial distress. Absalom refuses to plead not guilty to the charge, acknowledging that the accidental murder happened as a result of a botched robbery attempt. While his accomplices go free by lying, Absalom insists on telling the truth. We see all too clearly the desperation of the black man in a country where white rule is harshly imposed and opportunities are nonexistent.

The play was performed on an empty stage with chairs and curtains as the only props; the principals and chorus were awash in pale clothing. It was more than enough to convey the setting. Choreography was cleverly handled, from the sensual gyrations of Linda in the saloon to the mass movement of the chorus at the train station.

Lauren Michelle, who played Irina, starred in a 2016 Washington National Opera production of Lost in the Stars and reprised the role in Los Angeles. As the heartbroken and pregnant lover of the condemned Absalom, she poignantly portrayed the all-too-common victim of an indifferent society, making us feel the depth of her sorrow in the songs ‘Trouble Man’ and the gorgeous ‘Stay Well’.

Stephen Kumalo, performed by bass-baritone Justin Hopkins, is the dramatic anchor of the tragedy, and it is mainly through his eyes that we view the unjust world of apartheid. In a compelling performance, Hopkins sang majestically, capturing the pain and pathos of a loving father, concerned husband and religious leader of his community. He sang the evocative number ‘Lost in the Stars’ with tenderness, then delivered an anguished climax in ‘O Tixo, Tixo, Help Me!’

Issachah Savage as the Chorus Leader was beautifully cast. His voice resonated with clarity and power, leading, among many songs, the chorus in ‘Last Train to Johannesburg’ with the chilling refrain, ‘White man goes to Johannesburg, he comes back; black man goes to Johannesburg, never comes back’.

The chorus was exhilarating from first to last, and the principal actors were moving and spirited in their portrayals, particularly Will Bond as James Jarvis and Samuel Stricklen as Absalom.

Weill, Anderson and the original director, Rouben Mamoulian, understood the mechanics of drama and didn’t neglect to insert some lighter notes in the tragedy. Delivering the cleverly sexy ‘Who’ll Buy?’, Meloney Collins as Linda lit up the audience with her full-voiced, sensual number. And nine-year-old Joel Baptiste Muepo, having the time of his life, conquered the stage with ‘Big Mole’, a respite from the heartbreak.

If you can find a production of Lost in the Stars, run to see it. If you can’t, buy the CD, and if you have the interest, beg Jeffrey Kahane and Anne Bogart to take it on the road: the time is ripe.

Jane Rosenberg

Posted by Jane Rosenberg | Filed Under Musicals, Musicals & Others

Comments

Leave a Reply

Name

Mail (will not be published) Website

• Latest Classical Music News and Reviews

How Laurie Anderson And Philip Glass Were About To Change The World

The performance artist reflects on Philip Glass' generous spirit, his perpetually fresh ideas a [\[...\]](#)

Laurie Anderson Finds 'New Ways To Breathe' In A Philip Glass Etude

The veteran performance artist admires the skipping rhythms and calm center in the piano Etude No. 1 [\[...\]](#)

'Swimming In A Trance-Like State': Paul Simon On Philip Glass

The great songwriter explains his fascination with the repetition, symmetry and changing time signat [\[...\]](#)

A Philip Glass Moment That Could Last Forever

Pulitzer Prize-winning composer David Lang has been a Philip Glass fan since high school. But it was [\[...\]](#)

Nico Muhly's 'Mathematical, Organic And Achingly Beautiful' Philip Glass

The young composer recalls his teenage discovery of Music In 12 Parts — listening on a Discman while [\[...\]](#)

• Recent Posts

- A Rightly-Annoyed Barenboim Shows the Audience How to Cough
- Lost in the Stars: A Timeless Work that Speaks to All
- Igor Levit's Insightful Beethoven Cycle Continues to Stimulate and Enrich
- A Rewarding Weekend as the BBC Celebrates Philip Glass at Eighty
- Concert Confirms Greatness of Martha Argerich, Yuri Temirkanov and St Petersburg Philharmonic

Recent Reviews

- New York A Rightly-Annoyed Barenboim Shows the Audience How to Cough
- Los Angeles Lost in the Stars: A Timeless Work that Speaks to All
- London Igor Levit's Insightful Beethoven Cycle Continues to Stimulate and Enrich
- London A Rewarding Weekend as the BBC Celebrates Philip Glass at Eighty
- London Concert Confirms Greatness of Martha Argerich, Yuri Temirkanov and St Petersburg Philharmonic
- New York Torrential Bruckner Fourth and Fifth in Barenboim's Bruckner Cycle
- Los Angeles All Aboard the Orient Express for Mozart's Abduction from the Seraglio
- Vancouver Jean-Guihen Queyras and Alexander Melnikov Put On a Ravishing 'Winterlude'
- Cardiff Unjustly Neglected Orchestral Gems Aired by BBC NOW in Final 'Welsh Foundations' Concert Series
- London Chloë Hanslip Shines in the Sibelius Violin Concerto
- London Much to Admire in an Intense Programme from Elisabeth Leonskaja
- Oxford Argerich and Papadopoulos Delight Audience with World Premiere and Russian Classics

- Leeds Spectacular effects from Opera North in supporting a flawed musical drama
- London The City of London Sinfonia and Friends Dance with the Devil for Burns Night
- Philadelphia Great Music—Buried Under Too Much Tone
- Edinburgh Mercurial Grace: Pires and the SCO Sparkle in a pair of Mozart Piano Concertos
- London Jurowski's Revelatory Account of Vaughan Williams's Last Symphony
- London Emanuel Rimoldi has something fresh to say and it's worth hearing
- Vancouver Splendid Valedictory Strauss from Bramwell Tovey and Adrienne Pieczonka
- New York An Excellent Production and Performance of Roméo et Juliette from the Met

Season Previews

- NEW! Preview of the LA Opera 2017/18 Season

- NEW! Grange Park Opera's 2017 Season in its New Opera House
- NEW! Garsington Opera's Extended 2017 Season
- NEW! The 2017-18 Barbican Classical Music Season
- NEW! Coming Soon in February: The Fifth Ealing Music & Film Festival
- NEW! Siegfried comes to Saffron Walden
- NEW! Symphonic Soundscapes: Cadogan Hall and RPO Announce Exclusive Collaboration with Digital App Octava
- NEW! The 2017 Aldeburgh Festival is from 9 to 25 June
- NEW! The Grange Festival's First Season in June and July 2017
- NEW! Opera Buenos Aires 2017 With a Focus On Co-productions
- NEW! Preview of the 2017 Chipping Campden Festival
- NEW! Investec Opera Holland Park's Casts for the 2017 Season

Subscribe to Review Summary Newsletter

Reviews by Reviewer

News and Featured Articles

- NEW! FIVE YOUNG SINGERS JOIN THE JETTE PARKER YOUNG ARTISTS FOR 2017

- NEW! THE SOPRANO ELISABETH MEISTER: FIGHTING BACK FROM WHAT LIFE THROWS AT YOU AND INSPIRING OTHERS
- NEW! REVIEWERS OF SEEN AND HEARD INTERNATIONAL PICK THEIR BEST OF 2016

---

- NEW! HOW TO CONTACT SEEN AND HEARD INTERNATIONAL
- NEW! Göran Forsling's Opera Update from Helsinki and Stockholm
- NEW! Budapest's Chamber Music Festival Provides a Glimpse of Not Only an Existential But Also a Political Utopia
- NEW! The Mastersingers Celebrate Wagner Past and Present with the Rehearsal Orchestra

---

- NEW! MARTYN BRABBINS IS ENGLISH NATIONAL OPERA'S NEW MUSIC DIRECTOR

---

- NEW! MONICA HUGGETT IN CONVERSATION WITH GEOFFREY NEWMAN

---

- NEW! Movers Makers Musicians Mingle Part Two

Archives by Week

Select Week

Archives by Month

Archives by Month

Search S&H

Copyright © 2017 Seen and Heard International | All rights reserved.

· Log in